Freight Transport Deemed Essential Service

Stockwell International would like to reassure clients that any virus-inflicted restrictions on cross-border movements or community services will have minimal impact on the freight transport industry, according to numerous stakeholders.

Government statements have broadly listed transport and logistics, or the commercial supply chain, as an essential service that is able to continue work despite state shutdowns as a control measure against the spread of coronavirus Covid-19, including continuing to work cross borders.

Stockwells is an Essential Service, and we will be available 24 hours, 7 days a week to make sure all business' are serviced according to their own business demands.

Because we do not rely on third party trucking companies and run our own fleet our services remain in house. So you can be assured we have maximum flexibility to service your needs for fast turn arounds and completion.

Please feel free to discuss any of your concerns with your Stockwells representative at sales@stockwells.com.au or call on 1300 786 468
